Air Ministry Reports 400 Nazi Bombers In Widespread Attacks; Numerous Casualties Listed; Convoy Blasted By Reich Craft

LONDON, August 9—German war planes peppered various points in the British Isles with isolated bombing raids today while authorities investigated a mysterious three-hour fire which raged in the London dock area, destroying a huge storehouse and putting all air defenses in the London region on the alert.

The warehouse destroyed by fire was described by authoritative sources as one of London's main food depots. It contained an estimated 1,000,000 pounds of tea and thousands of cases of canned foods.

Scotland Yard officials were investigating the possibility that the big storage plant was destroyed by saboteurs. They pointed out that the fire broke out in several sections of the building simultaneously.

At least two Nazi raiders were accounted for during the day. One German bomber was brought down by anti-aircraft fire off the north-east coast, while a second was downed in air battle with three Spitfires in the same region. The German crew left its plane in a rubber boat and was taken prisoner.

British Believe Test Of Channel Supremacy To Be Approaching

LONDON, August 9—Military observers in London were convinced today that Germany now is prepared to do battle on a major scale for aerial supremacy of the English Channel.

That conclusion was drawn as a result of yesterday's massed German air assaults and torpedo boat attacks on a British shipping convoy at "Hell's Corner."

As far as the British Royal Air Force is concerned, the results of this first major trial of strength are considered satisfactory, even with the low official estimate of 60 German planes shot down.

This, it was stated, is well above the 10 percent average which experts feel must be maintained if Germany is to be vanquished in every air attack she launches against the British.

TOLL OF DEATHS IN SHELL PLANT BLAST GROWING

PIACENZA, Italy, August 9—With 39 persons killed and 45 others critically injured the death toll of yesterday's explosion at the Piacenza shell-loading factory threatened to increase greatly today. A total of 519 persons was injured in the two blasts.

Military and civilian hospitals were crowded with the wounded as General Soddu of the Fascist militia an high-ranking artillery officers began an investigation. Of the 519 total, 159 were listed as gravely injured and 45 as critically.

So far, the investigating officers have made no announcement of their findings. Unofficially, there were hints as to possible sabotage.

Silence Of Willkie On Draft Bill Puts G. O. P. Congressmen On 'Spot'

WASHINGTON, August 9—The self-imposed silence of Wendell Willkie, G.O.P. presidential nominee, on the conscription issue today leaves the Republican party in congress badly divided over President Roosevelt's proposal to call a million American youths to arms.

The Democrats are divided too, but they know where their standard-bearer, the President, stands on the issue. The Republicans, however, must make their decisions without knowing whether their titular head is going to support them or take an opposite position.

Some capitol politicians believe a strong denunciation of conscription by Willkie, thus making it a major issue in the presidential campaign, might lead to defeat of the presidential bill. Willkie's advisers, despite the uncertainty in his party ranks, nevertheless are insisting that he remain silent on this and all other major issues until he delivers his acceptance speech at Elwood, Ind., on August 17.

Most GOP leaders hope Willkie will come out against conscription, believing the issue unpopular with the masses of the American people. They point to the opposition of the AFL and CIO as reflecting the common man's opinion. Most Democrats hope Willkie will endorse the issue and thereby remove it from the campaign and leave them free to support the administration. (Continued on Page Eight)

Welles Says Standing Rule Of State Department Violated

WASHINGTON, August 9—President Roosevelt today summoned John Cudahy, ambassador to Belgium, to return to Washington at once from London to explain the interview in which he was quoted as saying that German troops participating in the invasion of Belgium behaved in a manner superior to that of American troops in the World War.

At the same time Acting Secretary of State Sumner Welles in a formal statement said that the ambassador to Belgium had violated the "standing rule of the State Department" against giving unauthorized interviews.

He repudiated Cudahy's remark as an official statement of American policy.

Welles also took the opportunity to warn other American envoys abroad against issuing public statements at "this critical time" without previous consent from the department.

Cudahy's interview in which he also warned that Belgians will starve this winter unless they receive food supplies was attacked vehemently by the British press.

Probers Hit Blank Wall In 'Sky Mystery'; Plane Hostess Remains Silent

NASHVILLE, Tenn., August 9—Investigators hit a blank wall today in attempts to solve the "mystery of the skies" in which a pretty American Airlines stewardess was knocked unconscious aboard a westbound sleeper plane as it neared Nashville Wednesday night.

Robbery was the only possible motive to be advanced officially for the apparent slugging, the stewardess having swallowed the key to the baggage and mail compartment in an effort to prevent the plane from being rifled in flight.

But how a robber might have planned to escape, or what of value he hoped to seize aboard the plane, could not be suggested by the investigators.

Miss Rosemary Griffith, 24, the injured stewardess, continued under observation in St. Thomas Hospital, where she refused to discuss the incident with reporters. Her condition was described as not serious.

A number of statements on the reported attack came from other sources, but they failed to shed much light on the mystery. The only official comment came from Paul Stanley, Nashville sales manager for the airline, who said: "Miss Griffith said she was leaning over in a corner of the ladies' lounge when a man whispered in her ear: 'Give me the key, or I'll slug you.'"

"Then she fell as if under a heavy blow on her head. As she lay on the floor of the plane, she said, she swallowed the key of the baggage compartment. She remembered nothing more until she was revived. She said she did not see anyone in the room."

X-Ray Shows Key That Miss Griffith had swallowed the key, which also could open the mail compartment, was revealed yesterday when x-rays of her stomach were made at the hospital. This gave rise to reports an attempt had been made to rifle the ship's mail, but Roy Mitchell, assistant American Airlines operations official who came to Nashville from New York to take part in the investigation, said the plane's mail and other cargo including "nothing of special value, as far as I know." He added the mail apparently had not been touched.

Several passengers gave their versions of the finding of Miss Griffith's unconscious form at about 8:30 p. m. Wednesday, half an hour after the transport landed at Nashville. In these statements, there was an apparent conflict as to just where the stewardess was found.

F. D. R. TO OPEN N. ENGLAND TOUR OF VITAL AREAS

HYDE PARK, N. Y., August 9 In line with his decision to educate the American public to the need for immediate and total preparedness, President Roosevelt will leave here late today for a whirlwind trip through four New England states designed to dramatize the naval defense situation.

Before leaving his Hyde Park home the President had informally opened his third term campaign by bidding for the support of the women of New York's five mid-Hudson counties and predicting he would be re-elected.

The chief executive also had conferred with Secretary of Agriculture Henry A. Wallace, his running mate, and presumably reached important decisions concerning campaign issues.

The three-day tour of Portsmouth, N. H., Boston, Mass., New York, R. I., and New London, Conn., will be devoid of speeches. Mr. Roosevelt further will make the jumps between these four important northeastern naval bases by boat, thus avoiding huge crowds that lined highways and city streets for miles when he swung through New England in 1936.

This is in line with his announcement that he expects to make virtually no open campaign this year and his assertion that a series of national defense tours he has in mind will be non-political.

NATIONAL GUARD CALL OKEHD BY VOTE IN SENATE

Year's Training Authorized With President Given Right To Call Men

ORIGINAL PLAN CHANGED

Wheeler-Norris To Battle Barkley-Byrnes Forces On Conscription

WASHINGTON, August 9—The senate today started its long-heralded battle over the first peacetime military conscription bill in the history of the nation after approving and sending to the house legislation authorizing the President to mobilize the National Guard for one year's training.

With the eyes of the nation focused on the conscription bill, the principle of which has been repeatedly endorsed by President Roosevelt, opponents and proponents on the controversial issue were ready for the struggle.

Both sides were lining up the senate's best oratorical talent, the best rough-and-tumble debaters. "Flying squadrons" of vote-getters were in action.

Sens. Wheeler (D) Mont., who led the successful fight against the President's Supreme Court enlargement program, and Norris (I-R) Neb., who has supported major New Deal legislation, will head the opposition forces. Sens. Barkley (D) Ky., the majority leader, and Byrnes (D) S. C., will handle the fight for the administration.

Both Sides Debated

The issue is clear. Those favoring the legislation agree with Gen. George C. Marshall, army chief of staff, Secretary of War Stimson, and the President as well, that voluntary enlistment will not give the nation sufficient men in the short time allotted to build up a highly trained army.

The opponents contend that voluntary enlistments will furnish enough men to keep abreast of the defense construction and army expansion program, that the administration has not made sufficient effort to increase voluntary enlistments, and that conscription is a "Hitlerized method" of regimentation.

The debate is estimated to last from two to four weeks. Administration leaders predict the bill will pass with not more than 20 opposing votes. The opponents, however, say they have "more than a fighting chance" to win.

The original conscription program was greatly curtailed by the senate military affairs committee. As introduced, it would have required the registration of all men between 17 and 65 for selective military and home defense training. Men between 21 and 45 would have been liable for a year's military training, those in the other age brackets for home defense training.

Although the bill sponsored by Sen. Burke (D) Neb., and Rep. Wadsworth (R) N. Y., has been drastically cut to only require the registration of men between 21 and 31 for selective military training it faces additional curtailment by the senate.

12,000,000 Available The War Department estimates there are approximately 12,000,000 men between 21 and 31, but it plans to induct into military service only 400,000 this fall, and an additional 400,000 next April.

Stacks of amendments face the bill, but Wheeler and his followers insist there will be no compromise with the issue of peacetime military conscription. They propose in place of conscription, one year enlistment in the army instead of three, at pay of $30 a month instead of $21.

The opponents have also turned thumbs down on the Maloney proposal to authorize the setting up of conscription machinery but delay the draft call until January 1, if, by that time, voluntary enlistment (Continued on Page Eight)

HAMILTON, Bermuda, August 9—The Duke of Windsor, stopping over briefly in Bermuda before proceeding to his post as governor of the Bahamas, planned a game of golf today after granting a scheduled interview to the press.

Tonight the duke and duchess will attend a dinner party and tomorrow Governor Sir Denis Bernhard will give a cocktail party in their honor at government house.

Capt. Wood said the couple probably will not visit the United States in the near future, especially in view of the forthcoming American elections.

SIX TESTIFY IN WEST HOLLAND ELECTION CASE

Fayette Board Hints That Nothing Further Will Be Done About Protest

WATERWORKS AT STAKE

Alleged Vote Tampering At May Primary Probed By Ohio Official

WASHINGTON C. H., August 9.—Questioning six election officials who presided in the West Holland Precinct at the May primary, the Fayette County Board of Elections, Prosecutor W. S. Paxson and J. A. Welker of the secretary of state's office, began their investigation Thursday of the alleged election fraud in the New Holland waterworks bond issue proposal.

An investigation was ordered when numerous votes that had been cast for the issue showed evidence of having been changed and voted against the measure, officials said.

Republican precinct officials summoned to testify were Clark Stookey, presiding judge; Marvin Hosler, judge, and Robert Ware, clerk. Democrats included Warren Briggs, presiding judge; Irvin Dawson, judge, and Stanley Helrich, clerk.

Although no official statement concerning the nature of the testimony was made by any of the officials, it was generally understood that the evidence taken was enlightening and that no further investigation would be made. The Fayette Board indicated that it would take no further steps until word was received from the secretary of state's office. Since the bond issue carried by a small margin in the disputed votes, the result of the investigation will in no way affect the result of the bond issue vote having carried.

New Holland Village Council has granted a contract to H. C. Parrett, of Washington C. H. for drilling a test well for the village's proposed waterworks system. The ten-inch well will be drilled on the Everett Fugh lot, which is being purchased by the village.

Engineers believed that a sufficient amount of acceptable water could be reached at a depth of 100 to 150 feet. Officials stated that work on the well would begin within a few days.

Meanwhile, Village councilmen said that $15,000 worth of general purpose bonds, approved by the voters at the May 14 primary election, and an additional $27,000 worth of revenue or mortgage bonds are soon to be sold. Once the bond sale is completed, and the $74,332 WPA grant is made

Advance Guard Leaves For New Night Camp

The advance guard of the U. S. National Guard, about 450 officers and men, left its bivouac at Plymouth, Ind., early Friday and proceeded north to a second night camp at Camp Grant, Ill.

The troops will arrive at Warrens, Wis., in the vicinity of the Second Army maneuver area, Saturday at 1:30 p. m. Remainder of the 11,500 Ohio troops will leave their home stations in 79 cities and towns in the state Sunday and Monday, arriving at base camps at Warrens, Weyville and Camp Williams Monday and Tuesday.

Maj. Gen. Gilson D. Light, commanding general of the 37th Division and also adjutant general of Ohio, and Col. W. S. Bird, his newly appointed chief-of-staff, are expected to arrive in the maneuver area Sunday afternoon. Nearly 4,000 troops will travel in motor vehicles with the remainder making the 600 mile journey by rail. The advance detachments are moving by truck.

The troops will erect a tent city to house all units immediately on arrival in the 1,000 mile square area. Short marches to gradually condition the troops and battalion problems will be held Tuesday and Wednesday with training becoming more intensified to culminate with a "grand" maneuver, August 24-27 with the Fifth Corps of which the Ohio troops are a part, fighting the Sixth Corps in free, unrestricted, stream-lined warfare.

Letter To President Of Athens Institution Hurls Charges

EDITORIAL IS ASSAILED

Attack On Military Bill Leads To Condemnation By Ex-Soldiers

ATHENS, August 9.—Charges that Ohio University was a "haven for young radicals, reds, trouble makers and democracy haters" were made today by the Athens post of the American Legion. In a letter to Dr. Herman G. James, president of the institution, officials of the K. T. Crossen Post of the Legion, demanded an explanation of recent activities of part of the student body.

The allegations were made by the Legion as the result of an editorial published recently in the university newspaper, the Ohio University Post, attacking the Burke-Wadsworth military conscription bill now pending in Congress.

"The officers and membership of the K. T. Crossen Post of the American Legion have been for some time more than a little concerned about the constantly increasing number of undesirable students appearing on the campus of Ohio University," the letter stated, "and the growing boldness of their subversive activities among students and town people.

Encouragement Noted
"Our deep concern in this matter grew into alarm when it became apparent that the administration and faculty of the university seemed to encourage more than attempt to deter such activities."

The Legion joined The Athens Messenger, daily newspaper, in criticizing vigorously a student-publication editorial that read, in part:

"We have been convinced, by shallow-thinking national leaders and war-mongering newspapers, that our way of life is threatened by events in Europe . . . "Chief instigator and promoter of the hysteria is Franklin D. Roosevelt. Failing miserably to solve our home problems, he has pointed toward Europe and shouted loudly about its chaos to distract us from our own messy house. A smokescreen of war hysteria has been rolled over America to hide mass unemployment, poverty, starvation."

The Legion in its letter to James asked that he "notify" students who are "unsympathetic" with American ideals that they are "not welcome" at Ohio University. James now is in Alaska on a vacation.

In conclusion, the letter declared: "Further we believe that the people of Ohio are entitled to a statement from you which will clearly set forth your position in this matter. If Ohio University is to continue as a haven for young radicals, reds, trouble makers and democracy haters, then that fact should be made known by you so that mothers and fathers may understand just what associations and influences await their sons and daughters when they enroll here."

In addition to Wickard, others scheduled to speak are Elmer F. Kruse, Ohio AAA chairman; Perry Faulkner, past commander of the Indiana American Legion; Maurice A. Doan, Michigan AAA chief and Marshall Vogler, Indiana AAA head.

SIX TESTIFY IN WEST HOLLAND ELECTION CASE

Fayette Board Hints That Nothing Further Will Be Done About Protest

WATERWORKS AT STAKE

Alleged Vote Tampering At May Primary Probed By Ohio Official

WASHINGTON C. H., August 2.—Questioning six election officials who presided in the West Holland Precinct at the May primary, the Fayette County Board of Elections, Prosecutor W. S. Faxon and J. A. Welker of the secretary of state's office, began their investigation Thursday of the alleged election fraud in the New Holland waterworks bond issue proposal.

An investigation was ordered when numerous votes that had been cast for the issue showed evidence of having been changed and voted against the measure, officials said.

Republican precinct officials summoned to testify were Clark Stookey, presiding judge; Marvin Hosler, judge, and Robert Ware, clerk. Democrats included Warren Briggs, presiding judge; Irvin Dawson, judge, and Stanley Helfrich, clerk.

Although no official statement concerning the nature of the testimony was made by any of the officials, it was generally understood that the evidence taken was enlightening and that no further investigation would be made. The Fayette Board indicated that it would take no further steps until word was received from the secretary of state's office. Since the bond issue carried by a small margin in the disputed votes, the result of the investigation will in no way affect the result of the bond issue vote having carried.

New Holland Village Council has granted a contract to H. C. Parrett, of Washington C. H., for drilling a test well for the village's proposed waterworks system. The ten-inch well will be drilled on the Everett Pugh lot, which is being purchased by the village.

Engineers believed that a sufficient amount of acceptable water could be reached at a depth of 100 to 150 feet. Officials stated that work on the well would begin within a few days.

Meanwhile, Village councilmen said that $15,000 worth of general purpose bonds, approved by the voters at the May 14 primary election, and an additional $27,000 worth of revenue or mortgage bonds are soon to be sold. Once the bond sale is completed, and the $74,332 WPA grant is made

ELWOOD AWAITS BIG CROWD FOR WILLKIE'S DAY

200,000 Expected To Hear
Republican Nominee Tell
Of His Program

DATE IS AUGUST 17

Indiana Town's Last Event,
Visit By McKinley
Being Recalled

ELWOOD, Ind., August 9—It takes a good stretch of the imagination to jump from Wendell L. Willkie to William McKinley, but there are some old-timers in this central Indiana community who can bridge the gap with ease.

There isn't any connection between Willkie and McKinley, but there is a very definite relationship between Elwood and the two men.

It was McKinley, the Ohioan who was elected President on the Republican ticket in the '90s, who first placed the city in the national political limelight, and it is Willkie who will bring his home town back to a place in the sun.

Somewhere between 200,000 and 300,000 people are expected here August 17 when Willkie is formally notified of his nomination as the G. O. P.'s standard-bearer for 1940 and makes his first major address of the presidential campaign.

Will Be Town's Top Event

By all standards, the ceremonies for the Hoosier-born, ex-utility magnate will dwarf every other event in the town's history. Until Willkie announced plans for delivering his acceptance speech here, however, old-timers fondly treasured memories of McKinley and the Republican party's protective tariff campaign as the No. 1 incident in local annals.

Willkie won't remember that rainy September 13th in 1892, because he was less than seven months old at the time. The occasion was the dedication of the first successful large-scale tinplate plant in the United States and a "Grand Republican Rally."

McKinley was Governor of Ohio then and came to Elwood to urge renomination and election of President Harrison. He arrived aboard a special train amidst a tremendous downpour of rain.

The inclement weather failed to dampen the enthusiasm of the 15,000 persons who had assembled for the occasion, however, and scores of gaily-attired bands and hundreds of uniformed marchers escorted the Governor to his hotel.

McKinley first briefly addressed the throng gathered in the mud-filled streets from the balcony of the city's old opera house and then made a formal speech inside the opera house, speaking for an hour and 30 minutes on the tariff question.

Was Robust Community

Elwood was a robust community in the '90s, resembling the mining towns of the far West. The city really got its start in 1887 with the discovery of natural gas in this area. Once its slogan was "The Buckle of the Gas Belt."

Gas companies sold "franchises" for $50 each which entitled the holder to all the gas he wanted at a single location as long as the gas was available.

Elwood was typical of the towns built by gas and Herman F. Willkie, father of the nominee, came here with his wife and older children at the beginning of the "boom."

The elder Willkie was an attorney and served one term as city prosecutor.

Although Elwood thrived for years on its gas production, no attempt was made to conserve the supply. It gradually became ex-

CLINTON COUNTY FAIR TO ESTABLISH RECORD

WILMINGTON, August 9—Dr. H. K. Bailey, president of the Clinton County Fair, declared Thursday that he believed the crowd at the fair would set a new attendance record.

The race program attracted a much larger crowd than the opening program, fair officials reporting the grand stand full and large numbers of racing fans standing. Another large crowd was reported at the fair Friday, when Governor Bricker and Mayor Harold H. Burton of Cleveland spoke.

TWO MEN GO TO COURT FOR FISHING VIOLATIONS

Two men were fined $10 and costs each Thursday in Mayor W. B. Cady's court after they had been arrested by Pickaway County Conservation Officer Clarence Francis.

Thomas Gore, Lancaster, was arrested for fishing with a license issued in the name of another person. He was committed to County Jail for failure to pay his fine.

G. G. Shuker, Charleston, W. Va., was arrested for fishing without a non-resident license. He paid his fine.

FOX FARM GARDENS TO OPEN FRIDAY EVENING

An elaborate program has been arranged for the opening of the Fox Farm Gardens, 17 miles south of Circleville on Route 23, with the grand opening scheduled Friday evening.

A floor show will be presented at 11 o'clock. The Five Little Foxes Orchestra, playing recently at Saranac Lake, New York, will provide music for dancing under the stars. Miss Mary Pickens, of Circleville, is manager of the Gardens.

haunted as result of enormous waste and the slogan, "Buckle of the Gas Belt," became only a memory.

The community has a new slogan now. It is inscribed over the entrance of the high school where Wendell L. Willkie, candidate for President, received his early education. The inscription reads: "The Hope of Our Country."

From some cause or other, there seems to be plenty of messin' around with most everybody exchanging dwellings within the next few days and the headquarters bunch is betting that nary a family moves on a Friday. Can't name 'em all, but a few of the number for a start. The Bryans, Eccards, Clouds, Smiths, Kuhns, Eversoles, McHaffey, Kaubers; and these are not all but enough to make a good start and keep us plenty busy for several days. And heard, just yesterday, that that lady teacher coming in from London territory for the Fifth Grade, will bring a family with her, so that's another one we hadn't counted in.

Jesse Kaiserman and G. A. Hook are up at Magnetic Springs for a few days but will be home Saturday and be telling how everything is up there—politics and all.

Thursday evening was open air picture show night and of it all, we had the "biggest kick" from a bunch of boy onlookers who was comfortably seated upon soap boxes they had reconstructed into really splendid seats with backs to them and all. And another youngster showed us the other day a neatly built small airplane. So we are not alarmed about these youngsters not being able to do things when grown up.

Talked to several of the band boys just in from their day's work at the Harrisburg Homecoming who said they had had a good day of it and a fine time and especially loud peddled the good eats they had over there. And "up aways from now" what stories these youngsters will be telling their grandchildren about what an awfully good band they played in and maybe tell of some of the fun they had. There were more than 50 members in the Harrisburg outfit, with Roy Kuhlwein, leader, substituting for Fred Hines.

Ashville—Friday, we're turning up with a trial run, the sweet corn canning machinery over at the factory and the boys, a part of the live working force, told us that we'd be surprised to see the fine Golden Bantam that was coming in from the river bottom farms.

ELWOOD AWAITS BIG CROWD FOR WILLKIE'S DAY

200,000 Expected To Hear
Republican Nominee Tell
Of His Program

DATE IS AUGUST 17

Indiana Town's Last Event,
Visit By McKinley
Being Recalled

ELWOOD, Ind., August 9—It takes a good stretch of the imagination to jump from Wendell L. Willkie to William McKinley, but there are some old-timers in this central Indiana community who can bridge the gap with ease.

There isn't any connection between Willkie and McKinley, but there is a very definite relationship between Elwood and the two men.

It was McKinley, the Ohioan who was elected President on the Republican ticket in the '90s, who first placed the city in the national political limelight, and it is Willkie who will bring his home town back to a place in the sun. Somewhere between 200,000 and 300,000 people are expected here August 17 when Willkie is formally the G. O. P.'s standard-bearer for 1940 and makes his first major address of the presidential campaign.

Will Be Town's Top Event

By all standards, the ceremonies for the Hoosier-born, ex-utilities magnate will dwarf every other event in the town's history. Until Willkie announced plans for delivering his acceptance speech here, however, old-timers fondly treasured memories of McKinley and the Republican party's protective tariff campaign as the No. 1 incident in local annals.

Willkie won't remember that rainy September 13th in 1892, because he was less than seven months old at the time. The occasion was the dedication of the first successful large-scale tinplate plant in the United States and a "Grand Republican Rally."

McKinley was Governor of Ohio then and came to Elwood to urge renomination and election of President Harrison. He arrived aboard a special train amidst a tremendous downpour of rain. The inclement weather failed to dampen the enthusiasm of the 15,000 persons who had assembled for the occasion, however, and scores of gaily-attired bands and hundreds of uniformed marchers escorted the Governor to his hotel. McKinley first briefly addressed the throng gathered in the mud-filled streets from the balcony of the city's old opera house and then made a formal speech inside the opera house, speaking for an hour and 30 minutes on the tariff question.

Was Robust Community

Elwood was a robust community in the '90s, resembling the mining towns of the far West. The city really got its start in 1887 with the discovery of natural gas in this area. Once its slogan was "The Buckle of the Gas Belt."

Gas companies sold "franchises" for $50 each which entitled the holder to all the gas he wanted at a single location as long as the gas was available. Elwood was typical of the towns built by gas and Herman F. Willkie, father of the nominee, came here with his wife and older children at the beginning of the "boom."

The elder Willkie was an attorney and served one term as city prosecutor.

Although Elwood thrived for years on its gas production, no attempt was made to conserve the supply. It gradually became ex-

CLINTON COUNTY FAIR TO ESTABLISH RECORD

WILMINGTON, August 9—Dr. H. K. Bailey, president of the Clinton County Fair, declared Thursday that he believed the crowd at the fair would set a new attendance record.

The race program attracted a much larger crowd than the opening program, fair officials reporting the grand stand full and large numbers of racing fans standing. Another large crowd was reported at the fair Friday, when Governor Bricker and Mayor Harold H. Burton of Cleveland spoke.

TWO MEN GO TO COURT FOR FISHING VIOLATIONS

Two men were fined $10 and costs each Thursday in Mayor W. B. Cady's court after they had been arrested by Pickaway County Conservation Officer Clarence Francis.

Thomas Gore, Lancaster, was arrested for fishing with a license issued in the name of another person. He was committed to County Jail for failure to pay his fine.

G. G. Shuker, Charleston, W. Va., was arrested for fishing without a non-resident license. He paid his fine.

FOX FARM GARDENS TO OPEN FRIDAY EVENING

An elaborate program has been arranged for the opening of the Fox Farm Gardens, 17 miles south of Circleville on Route 23, with the grand opening scheduled Friday evening.

A floor show will be presented at 11 o'clock.

The Five Little Foxes Orchestra, playing recently at Saranac Lake, New York, will provide music for dancing under the stars.

Miss Mary Pickens, of Circleville, is manager of the Gardens.

haunted as result of enormous waste and the slogan, "Buckle of the Gas Belt," became only a memory.

The community has a new slogan now. It is inscribed over the entrance of the high school where Wendell L. Willkie, candidate for President, received his early education. The inscription reads: "The Hope of Our Country."

MEN OF SOIL: This is the season of the year when fires can be started with very little provocation. This is also the season when all of you should exercise the greatest amount of care to prevent flames from starting on your properties. Your entire summer's work, and often the efforts you have put forth for many years, will be burned out in a few moments' time. With dry weather prevailing as it has this summer rural Pickaway County is extremely dry and the smallest kind of a spark might set fire to a straw stack, or a stubble field, or almost anything that could burn. The community fire truck, housed in Circleville's engine house, is always ready to speed to the scene of a fire, but I hope sincerely that there is no occasion for its service in rural Pickaway County this summer. Not only should rural folk be cautious, but also should those persons of Circleville in an effort to cut down the loss from flames. Last summer was disastrous. You will recall that several runs into rural areas were necessary, and that after the smaller truck was broken down that several calls were received for which no aid could be provided. Loss of property was high in this respect. Please be careful: While fire is one of man's greatest friends, it can also be one of his worst enemies.

SOLDIERS: During the next three weeks all of you will be given excellent training in military lore, that may some day prove very valuable to you. Circleville's two Guard outfits, one connected with field artillery and the other a medical organization, are ably directed and each is filled with capable personnel. WORLD AT A GLANCE

—By— Charles F. Stewart

EDWARD J. FLYNN being his party's leader in the Bronx, a chorus of cheers greeted announcement of his selection to succeed James A. Farley as chairman of the Democratic national committee and manager of the Roosevelt-Wallace campaign.

Any way, that's the kind of applause the Republicans say they heard from the New Dealers' ranks when the news was handed out of Flynn's elevation to the post "big Jim" is retiring from.

And it's a fact that quite a few expressions of dissatisfaction are audible from various Democratic quarters. Among others some of the most enthusiastic workers at the Chicago convention for a Roosevelt third term nomination rather confidentially think that Ed was a mistake. Upon Farley's notification that he was quitting, they were in favor of letting him go as soon as possible. They never considered him much of a New Dealer, but he wasn't an "anti" either, and they recognized his political cleverness. So they got along with him very well until he developed into so emphatic a third term opponent. Since then they've been more than anxious to get rid of him.

Well, he is resigning alright—but virtually he's naming his own successor. That is to say, it's common talk that he urged his old friend Ed for the job, and F. D. saw fit to give it to him, presumably because he deemed it judicious to placate Jim all he could. But several of his lieutenants are pretty glum about it.

TAMMANY DEAD SORE
Ed has, indeed, been a first-rate New Dealer—more so than Jim has been. The latter, while 100 percent loyal to the Democratic label, has been a bit indifferent to New Deal policies. Ed has been New Dealer-ish very active.

By being so he has bitterly antagonized Tammany.

Yet out in the west he's being referred to as a "big city boss." The west evidently thinks he's a Tammany-ite.

Old-fashioned southern Democrats look askance upon his pro-New Deal record. To be sure, Senator James F. Byrnes of South Carolina (which certainly is southern enough) speaks in the highest terms of him, but Senator Byrnes is a New Dealer, Texas' spokesmen, doubtless mindful of Vice President John N. Garner's fate are anything but cheerful.

In short, Ed's on the blacklist of our biggest city's biggest political organization, but out in the western sticks he classifies as the principal boss of an overly big city. And among old-time southern Democrats he's assessed as a much to modern radical, whereas a goodly group of New Dealers see him as a stooge for a New Dealer-ish neutral (at best) Jim Farley.

ED WELL ACQUAINTED
Senator Byrnes' version is that Ed has a "wide acquaintance," as New York's national committee-has been of outstanding significance in the last couple of years because of the fellowship the picnic provides. Games are planned, and outstanding entertainment is provided for young and old. The park's many facilities will be thrown open for you during the entire day. An excellent committee comprised of Grange and Farm Bureau leaders has been appointed and it has started to work on its plans. The day promises to be a big one, so I urge all of you to look forward to Tuesday, August 20, as a date to circle on your calendar because that date will give you an opportunity to put aside your usual cares and obtain entertainment and relaxation.

TO THE WEATHERMAN

DEAR SIR: Thanks for the rain you sent us Tuesday. We had come to the conclusion that either you had forgotten us entirely or were using all the water on your own perspiring brow. Your donation Tuesday was a temporary life-saver to many corn fields and meadows in the county, but your foolish tampering with the cloud faucets already has brought much damage to the sweet corn crop. Inclosed you will find a receipt for your Tuesday rain supply and a check for an additional good shower within the next few days. Hoping to hear from you soon.

TO JUNIOR GROUPS

YOUNG FOLK: Everyone was pleased to learn that you are to take such an active part in this year's Pumpkin Show. Your 50-piece 4-H Club band, which has presented concerts at a number of gatherings this year, has won favorable comment wherever it has performed. Your exhibits, including those of your 4-H Clubs, your vocational agriculture and home economics departments, your juvenile grange, Future Farmers, Boy Scout and Girl Scout exhibits and your school displays always have been outstanding attractions at the Pumpkin Show, and have brought many rural people to Circleville. The fat-stock sale you are planning this year no doubt will attract thousands. Pumpkin Show directors have stated that there could be no show without the active participation of your groups. The interest of you young people in the show is the best insurance we have of successful show in the future.

TO CAMP MEETING DIRECTORS

GENTLEMEN: Last Sunday you closed your camp meeting at the Lancaster grounds. Participants have labeled it one of the most successful in years. During your camp season, thousands have visited the camp grounds to enjoy your programs. You have had with you many outstanding leaders, including Homer Rodeheaver, the Rev. Howard Cadle, the Rev. Vaseley A. Relter and Dr. Brand L. Stradley. All your programs have brought education and entertainment to those who were privileged to see them. Your newly elected officers, A. B. Vlerobome, president; C. F. Bowman, vice-president; H. W. Plum, secretary, and Amos Turner, treasurer, have already met and made plans for next year's program. Congratulations on a successful year, and best wishes for a similar one next season.

DIET AND HEALTH

Middle-Age Hearts

GUEST conductor of this column today is Dr. Don Carlos Peete of Kansas City:

Heart disease of middle age is due, not to infection, but to arterial change.

There is a growing impression in the medical profession that there is far too much anxiety developing over heart disease.

The heart receives blood supply through the coronary arteries. These vessels course through the muscles of the heart, breaking up into smaller and smaller branches, forming a network of blood channels that are so numerous that it is possible to increase the blood flow to the heart many hundred times. The ability of the heart to respond to an increase in work is directly dependent upon the ease with which blood can flow through the coronary circulation.

Dr. Clendening will answer questions of general interest only, and then only through his column.

In youth these vessels are very elastic and by means of special nerves known as vasomotor nerves, alterations are made in the blood flow to the heart hundreds of times a day without the individual being aware of it.

Poor Circulation
If there is a change in this mechanism, either in the elasticity of the blood vessels or, as in some patients, over-stimulation of the vasomotor nerves, pain through the chest, upper abdomen or in the arms may result. The cause of this pain is due primarily to an inadequate flow of blood through the coronary circulation.

It is an accepted fact that there is a normal change that takes place during advancing years. This consists in thickening of the arterial wall, narrowing of the lumen, and a loss of elasticity, finally calcification.

If, during the aging process, enough new vessels develop which will aid in compensating for blood channels that close off slowly, the individual may go on and on for years without any form of heart trouble.

Observations made both in laboratory studies on animals and among various populations of the world, lead one to the conclusion that high blood pressure of the common type of over-stimulation from habits of over-exertion, when one becomes frightened or angered, the stimulation of these nerves results and there is a rise in blood pressure. As this process is repeated, a habit is soon acquired that leads to a greater ease with which these centers may be stimulated.

Avoid Worry

I should like to emphasize to the young as well as to the old, to cultivate this philosophy of life, "live and let live." Be cautious of developing habits of worry and anxiety, especially if there is a family history of early vascular disease. After the age of thirty, be careful to keep your weight near normal limits and consult your physician about a properly balanced diet. He will also advise about smoking.

One may conclude from a study of mortality statistics covering a period of the last twenty years that the increase in artery disease is no greater than is to be expected, due to the increase in the span of life and to the better facilities for correct diagnosis.

EDITOR'S NOTE: Dr. Clendening has seven pamphlets which can be obtained free. Each pamphlet sells for 10 cents. For any one pamphlet desired, send 10 cents in coin, and a self-addressed envelope. The pamphlets are: "Three Weeks' Reducing Diet," "Indigestion and Constipation," "Reducing and Gaining," "Infant Feeding," "Instructions for the Treatment of the Diets," "Feminine Hygiene" and "The Care of the Hair and Skin."

Looking Back in Pickaway County

FIVE YEARS AGO

The prevailing price for pork chops at Circleville butcher shops was between 35 and 40 cents a pound with but few buyers.

Mrs. Don White, South Court Street honored Miss Helen Hitler, West Mound Street, and Miss Katherine May, South Court Street, brides-elect, when she entertained with a luncheon-bridge party at the Pickaway Country Club.

Receipt of 792 checks totalling $65,240.15 to be distributed to Pickaway County farmers as the first payment of the 1935 corn and hog contracts was announced by officials of the Farm Bureau.

10 YEARS AGO

The tuberculosis clinic conducted in Ashville by the State department of health disclosed the fact that there were many unrecognized cases of tuberculosis in the community. Thirty applicants were examined, four being found positive for tuberculosis, while 11 were classified as suspicious.

Mr. and Mrs. Dudley Roth and daughter, Martha, of New Holland returned home after a 9,000 mile motor trip through the West. They left early in May for the travel vacation.

Mrs. Orion King arrived home from Bay Village, near Cleveland, where she had been visiting for two weeks with Mr. and Mrs. Milton Cayce.

25 YEARS AGO

The Ohio penitentiary farm, including 400 acres near Orient, tilled under the personal supervision of R. R. Hiatt, reported bumper crops with products shipped daily to the institution for immediate consumption.

A horse hitched to a wagon ran away and broke the speed limit on Main Street, the trouble being caused by flies. The horse, which was owned by Marion Hanley, Columbus Pike was caught just east of Court Street, no damage having been done to horse or wagon.

Miss Florence Stein returned after a delightful trip to the exposition at San Francisco returning through the Canadian Rockies.

CHAPTER THIRTY-SEVEN
LINDA turned to the car where Ronald waited as the door closed behind Robert. It was such a final closing. Not sharp. Not swift. Just inevitable.

"Linda, Sarah's eloped," Ronald said. "Eloped with a man from our band!"

"I didn't know she was interested in any of the men in your band," she answered as she climbed into the car.

"She isn't. That's it! Don't you see? But she thought that it was hopeless to wait around. Oh, I'm making a mess of it. Sarah fell in love with me, really in love. Not at first. That was a game she played. But later . . ."

"His voice was broken and hurt. There was no pretense in it now. Linda spoke steadily."

"You mean since that night on the boat when I saw you, and maybe before?"

He nodded, not speaking. The road was deserted at this hour. They had gone over to the streets along the piers and turned northward. There was a smell of fish and an odor of salt in the wind.

Ronald spoke again. "She can't marry this man, Linda, because she doesn't care anything about him. He's not a bad saxophone, but he's not for her. Some day there'll be somebody else. Oh, hang it, we've got to stop her, Linda!"

It seemed to Linda, thinking about it afterward, that in that moment she grew up. Suddenly the whole pattern was clear. She and Ronnie had grown up together. They had given their first boy-and-girl devotion to each other. It had been a preface to an older, wiser love, but they had not known. They had gone on, blindly believing this was real.

And it wasn't. She knew it now. Ronald loved Sarah, but he had felt that the new affection must not replace the old one. In this new understanding Linda could even forgive him for asking her to wait with her evidence concerning Mr. Parrish. She could forgive him, but not quite forget.

As the car sped past the steamship agencies she spoke simply. "Ronald, why didn't you tell me you loved Sarah?"

The eyes he turned to hers were troubled, not believing. "I love you!"

So he still would cling to the fabric of the pattern, still believe in something that was beautiful and had been lost! Oh, life and love would be such simple things if she could accept his words and make her heart repeat them.

"No, Ronald, not for a long time. Or why are you trying to rescue Sarah?"

"Because I—" His voice paused, then finished swiftly. "Because I can't bear to see her marry anyone else!"

Linda managed to grin in the dark car. "Swell, Ronnie, then she won't marry anyone else. We'll get to her. Do you know where she went?"

"I think so. The saxophone player spilled the beans to some of us tonight. Wanted me to hear, and I got the name out of him. They have a head start. Maybe we can't overtake them."

"I'm holding on tight and you're stepping on the gas. We will overtake them!"

"But you, Linda?" Suddenly he remembered that he had been engaged to her.

She tried to laugh, but the sound was more like a sob. She did not care—but so many things were going to pieces. "Don't you remember, Ronnie? I'm the girl who told you we were taking different paths awhile ago? We aren't engaged anymore."

"But that was foolish—" "Not foolish. Just sensible. I like you, Ronnie. You're—your tops. But that's all. Now let's think about getting to Sarah."

At that moment she did not think about Robert. She was seeing the many times when Ronald had come to her in loyalty, trying to keep an old romance bright, telling himself that Sarah was an infatuation because he had made a pledge elsewhere.

There was a traffic jam ahead of them as they swung to the road up to Connecticut and they were held up 15 minutes. At last Ronald climbed out of the car.

He came back in a moment. "We can't get through. Two trucks overturned. No one hurt, but it will be half an hour before the highway is opened."

Half an hour! In that time Sarah would have said her marriage vows, and she and Ronnie might as well go home at once. They couldn't do that. She had helped Ronnie too long to fail him now.

"Isn't there some sort of car on the other side of the jam that we could commandeer?" she asked. She slipped into the driver's seat and drove Ronnie's off the beaten path into a field. Then she held out her hand.

"Come on, we'll get one and make it turn around after we get through the barricade."

They found a car which was willing. It belonged to some high school boys who had covered it with gay signs, but they did not notice them.

"Step on it!" Ronnie said, and the car whizzed up the road. It didn't travel as fast as Linda had imagined it would. She felt herself holding to the door, shaking it, trying to wish it into faster speed.

One mile passed. Two and three. They went on and on. Finally Ronald gave the name of the minister they wanted. It was that of a man who conducted a marriage and performing ceremonies in swift procession. They were brief affairs, too. Probably Sarah and the saxophonist were gone by now, Linda thought.

For just a moment, eyes on the low white moon, with the sweet smell of new earth rushing past, she thought of that other Connecticut ceremony of two nights ago. It had been held in a church, where there were flowers and candles and vows to be taken. And Robert had been there. Ah, there would be time enough to think about him later.

The car stopped. Ronald handed the driver a bill and clutched Linda's slender arm. He hurried her through the maze of cars at the entrance to the building.

From the entrance she could not see Sarah. Nor was there any sign of her around the room.

"She must be here," Linda said. "Or maybe she hasn't arrived yet. Ronnie. Maybe that's it."

And among old-time southern Democrats he's assessed as a much to modern radical, whereas a goodly group of New Dealers see him as a stooge for a New Dealerish neutral (at best) Jim Farley.

This confusion unquestionably is largely due to the circumstance that Ed Flynn has next to no acquaintance throughout the country.

ED WELL ACQUAINTED

Senator Byrnes' version is that Ed has a "wide acquaintance," as New York's national committeeman. The truth is that precious few people west of the Hudson ever heard of him until just now. He may GET acquainted as chairman, but just as a mere committeeman?—phooey!

One thing that Ed will need to attend to as speedily as convenient will be the acquisition of a few prominent floppers from other parties over to New Dealerism.

Plenty of Democrats have flopped over to Willie, but there's been no flopping in the other direction. The other day there was a very conspicuous flop—Senator Henrik Shipstead's flop from the Farmer-Labor aggregation wasn't so queer. He explained that. He said that the Farmer-Labor organization has been taken over by "a small group of selfish, greedy and subversive men." That was a sound reason. But wouldn't one have thought that he'd have flopped to the supposedly liberal New Deal?—for he always has been rated as quite a radical. But no, he flopped to the Republicans—the relative reactionaries according to New Deal representations.

It looks as if he didn't accept the New Deal account—as if he'd decided that today's Republicans are more progressive than the New Dealers.

That sort of flop are of such a nature that it behooves Chairman Flynn to forestall if he can manage it. We've known all the time that there were some flopping Democrats, but Republican flopping independents are unexpectedly noticeable.

DIET AND HEALTH

Middle-Age Hearts

GUEST conductor of this column today, Dr. Don Carlos Peete of Kansas City:

Heart disease of middle age is due, not to infection, but to arterial change.

There is a growing impression in the medical profession that there is far too much anxiety developing over heart disease.

The heart receives blood supply through the coronary arteries. These vessels course through the muscles of the heart, breaking up into smaller and smaller branches, forming a network of blood channels that are so numerous that it is possible to increase the blood flow to the heart many hundred times. The ability of the heart to respond to an increase in work is directly dependent upon the ease with which blood can flow through the coronary circulation.

Dr. Glendening will answer questions of general interest only, and then only through his column.

In youth these vessels are very elastic and by means of special nerves known as vasomotor nerves, alterations are made in the blood flow to the heart hundreds of times a day without the individual being aware of it.

Poor Circulation

If there is a change in this mechanism, either in the elasticity of the blood vessels or, as in some patients, over-stimulation of the vasomotor nerves, pain through the chest, upper abdomen or in the arms may result. The cause of this pain is due primarily to an inadequate flow of blood through the coronary circulation.

It is an accepted fact that there is a normal change that takes place during advancing years. This consists in thickening of the arterial wall, narrowing of the lumen, and a loss of elasticity, finally calcification.

If, during the aging process, enough new vessels develop, which will aid in compensating for blood channels that close off slowly, the individual may go on and on for years without any form of heart trouble.

Observations made both in laboratory studies on animals and among various populations of the world, lead one to the conclusion that high blood pressure of the common type results partially from habits of over-stimulation of the emotional centers. That is: when one becomes frightened or angered, the stimulation of these nerves results and there is a rise in blood pressure. As this process is repeated, a habit is soon acquired that leads to a greater ease with which these centers may be stimulated.

Avoid Worry

I should like to emphasize to the young as well as to the old, to cultivate this philosophy of life, "live and let live." Be cautious of developing habits of worry and anxiety, especially if there is a family history of early vascular disease. After the age of thirty, be careful to keep your weight near normal limits and consult your physician about a properly balanced diet. He will also advise about smoking.

One may conclude from a study of mortality statistics covering a period of the last twenty years that the increase in artery disease is no greater than is to be expected, due to the increase in the span of life and to the better facilities for correct diagnosis.

EDITOR'S NOTE: Dr. Glendening has seven pamphlets which can be obtained by readers. Each pamphlet sells for 10 cents. For any one pamphlet desired, send 10 cents in coin, and a self-addressed envelope stamped with a three-cent stamp, to Dr. Logan Glendening, in care of this paper. The pamphlets are: "Three Weeks' Reducing Diet," "Indigestion and Constipation," "Feeling and Getting," "Infant Feeding," "Instructions for the Treatment of the Care of the Hair and Skin."

CHAPTER THIRTY-SEVEN
LINDA turned to the car where Ronald waited as the door closed behind Robert. It was such a final closing. Not sharp. Not swift. Just inevitable.

"Linda, Sarah's eloped," Ronald said. "Eloped with a man from our band!"

"I didn't know she was interested in any of the men in your band," she answered as she climbed into the car.

"She isn't. That's it! Don't you see? But she thought that it was hopeless to wait around. Oh, I'm making a mess of it. Sarah fell in love with me, really in love. Not at first. That was a game she played. But later . . ."

His voice was broken and hurt. There was no pretense in it now. Linda spoke steadily.

"You mean since that night on the boat when I saw you, and maybe before?"

He nodded, not speaking.

The road was deserted at this hour. They had gone over to the streets along the piers and turned northward. There was a smell of fish and an odor of salt in the wind.

Ronald spoke again. "She can't marry this man, Linda, because she doesn't care anything about him. He's not a bad saxophone, but he's not for her. Some day there'll be somebody else. Oh, hang it, we've got to stop her, Linda!"

It seemed to Linda, thinking about it afterward, that in that moment she grew up. Suddenly the whole pattern was clear. She and Ronnie had grown up together. They had given their first boy-and-girl devotion to each other. It had been a preface to an older, wiser love, but they had not known. They had gone on, blindly believing this was real.

And it wasn't. She knew it now. Ronald loved Sarah, but he had felt that the new affection must not replace the old one. In this new understanding Linda could even forgive him for asking her to wait with her evidence concerning Mr. Parrish. She could forgive him, but not quite forget.

As the car sped past the steamship agencies she spoke simply. "Ronald, why didn't you tell me you loved Sarah?"

The eyes he turned to hers were troubled, not believing.

"I love you!" So he still would cling to the fabric of the pattern, still believe in something that was beautiful and had been lost! Oh, life and love would be such simple things if she could accept his words and make her heart repeat them.

"No, Ronald, not for a long time. Or why are you trying to rescue Sarah?"

"Because I—" His voice paused, then finished swiftly. "Because I can't bear to see her marry anyone else!"

Linda managed to grin in the dark car. "Swell, Ronnie, then she won't marry anyone else. We'll get to her. Do you know where she went?"

"I think so. The saxophone player spilled the beans to some of us tonight. Wanted me to hear, and I got the name out of him. They have a head start. Maybe we can't overtake them."

"I'm holding on tight and you're stepping on the gas. We will overtake them!"

"But you, Linda?" Suddenly he remembered that he had been engaged to her.

She tried to laugh, but the sound was more like a sob. She did not care—but so many things were going to pieces. "Don't you remember, Ronnie? I'm the girl who told you we were taking different paths awhile ago? We aren't engaged anymore."

"But that was foolish—"

"Not foolish. Just sensible. I like you, Ronnie. You're—you're tops. But that's all. Now let's think about getting to Sarah."

At that moment she did not think about Robert. She was seeing the many times when Ronald had come to her in loyalty, trying to keep an old romance bright, telling himself that Sarah was an infatuation because he had made a pledge elsewhere.

There was a traffic jam ahead of them as they swung to the road up to Connecticut and they were held up 15 minutes. At last Ronald climbed out of the car.

He came back in a moment. "We can't get through. Two trucks overturned. No one hurt, but it will be half an hour before the highway is opened."

Just an hour? In that time Sarah would have said her marriage vows, and she and Ronnie might as well go home at once. They couldn't do that. She had helped Ronnie too long to fail him now.

"Isn't there some sort of car on the other side of the jam that we could commandeer?" she asked. She slipped into the driver's seat and drove Ronnie's off the beaten path into a field. Then she held out her hand.

"Come on, we'll get one and make it turn around after we get through the barricade."

They found a car which was willing. It belonged to some high school boys who had covered it with gay signs, but they did not notice them.

"Step on it!" Ronnie said, and the car whizzed up the road. It didn't travel as fast as Linda had imagined it would. She felt herself holding to the door, shaking it, trying to wish it into faster speed.

One mile passed. Two and three. They went on and on. Finally Ronald gave the name of the minister they wanted. It was that of a man who had conducted a marriage mart, performing ceremonies in swift procession. They were brief affairs, too. Probably Sarah and the saxophonist were gone by now, Linda thought.

For just a moment, eyes on the low white moon, with the sweet smell of new earth rushing past, she thought of that other Connecticut ceremony of two nights ago. It had been held in a church, where there were flowers and candles and vows to be taken. And Robert had been there. Ah, there would be time enough to think about him later.

The car stopped. Ronald handed the driver a bill and clutched Linda's slender arm. He hurried her through the maze of cars at the entrance to the building.

From the entrance she could not see Sarah. Nor was there any sign of her around the room.

"She must be here," Linda said. "Or maybe she hasn't arrived yet. Ronnie, maybe that's it."

FICTIONAL CRIMINAL

A fictional criminal, George Rainoff, who has spent 22 years of his life in prison on various theft charges, is the central character in "Crime Doctor," original drawn by Max Marcin on CBS Sunday, at 7:30 p. m.

Rainoff is interrogated by the "Crime Doctor," played by Ray Collins and an examining committee on his application for release after serving the four-year minimum term imposed for his last crime: The prisoner's life is traced in a series of exciting episodes and the radio audience will be asked to explain in letters of one hundred words or less whether Rainoff should be released or returned to his cell. There will be cash prizes for the best letters. Ray Block and his orchestra supply background music with introductions by Johnny the Call Boy and Charles O'Connor.

ALDRICH ON TOUR
Henry (Ezra Stone) Aldrich and his pal, Dizzy, are planning a trip to the coast in their second-hand jalopy during the Thursday episode of "The Aldrich Family" over the NBC-Red network at 7:30 p. m. In order to defray expenses they advertise for passengers and get so many applications that it gives them the idea of starting a national transportation bureau. Author of Stone's starring vehicle is Clifford Goldsmith.

CROSBY REUNION
Bob Crosby's parents, whom he hasn't seen in more than a year because of band activities which kept him in the east, will be among the members of the Crosby family who will attend the gala premiere of Bob's Dixieland Band at the Avalon Casino on Catalina Island Sunday. Others include his famed brother Bing Crosby and the other brother, besides movie and radio stars like Kay Kyser, Victor Young, Don Ameche and Meredith Willson. The broadcasts of the Dixieland Music Shop will be heard from there every Thursday night over NBC.

RADIO BRIEFS
New trumpeter in Frankie Masters' orchestra is Walter Smith, formerly of Larry Clinton's band.

When Charlie McCarthy returns in September, his voice, Edgar Bergen, will make the dummy's adventures a semi-serious story and instead of having each program complete in itself, dialers will have to tune in from week to week to find out what it's all about. Bergen expects to add several new characters including girl friends for Charlie.

For the first time in his career, Don Ameche, known to screen and radio fans as the romantic hero type, turns bad man in his next picture, "Western Union."

Linda Carlson, who plays the mother in "The Parker Family," is spending her time between broadcasts working on a series of short stories.

Gwen Williams will be Frankie Masters' guest at the luncheon session at the Taft Hotel Monday afternoon so that camera enthusiasts can take pictures. In the evening the bandleader plays host to Yvette, new song star.

Although he uses a 21-piece orchestra on the Tuesday night "Johnny Presents" programs, Ray Block has cut down the size of his "Crime Doctor" crew to 12 inasmuch as all that's required on the latter show is cue music and background passages.

Abbott and Costello will remain in Hollywood for five or six weeks while making their first starring picture for Universal.

Alec Templeton breaks up his radio vacation to guest on the "Basin Street" program over NBC Sunday.

STARS SAY—
For Friday, August 9

ACCORDING to the lunar transits, social, domestic or affectional matters will engage paramount attention. Other affairs are adversely affected. There is menace of fraud, duplicity as well as loss through careless signatures. Heckless or drastic action may bring considerable penalty. In difficulties or tight financial crises it is probably that feminine generosity will come to the fore. But parties, festivities and sentimental values are uppermost.

Those whose birthday it is may have a more pleasant than prosperous year. The attention may be devoted to celebrations, sentimental attachments or good times generally. Business is jeopardized by fraud, treachery, careless signatures and documents, and also by rash and impractical moves. Study correspondence lest there be misconstruction and trouble. Be discreet in group action.

A child born on this day may be disposed to stretch the truth or exhibit other forms of duplicity or "shrewdness," to its detriment. But it will be socially gracious, refined, and lovable.

FICTION CRIMINAL
A fictional criminal, George Rainoff, who has spent 22 years of his life in prison on various theft charges, is the central character in "Crime Doctor," original drawn by Max Marcin over CBS Sunday, at 7:30 p. m.

Rainoff is interrogated by the "Crime Doctor," played by Ray Collins and an examining committee on his application for release after serving the four-year minimum term imposed for his last crime: The prisoner's life is traced in a series of exciting episodes and the radio audience will be asked to explain in letters of one hundred words or less whether Rainoff should be released or returned to his cell. There will be cash prizes for the best letters. Ray Block and his orchestra supply background music with introductions by Johnny the Call Boy and Charles O'Connor.

ALDRICH ON TOUR
Henry (Ezra Stone) Aldrich and his pal, Dizzy, are planning a trip to the coast in their second-hand jalopy during the Thursday episode of "The Aldrich Family" over the NBC-Red network at 7:30 p. m. In order to defray expenses they advertise for passengers and get so many applications that it gives them the idea of starting a national transportation bureau. Author of Stone's starring vehicle is Clifford Goldsmith.

CROSBY REUNION
Bob Crosby's parents, whom he hasn't seen in more than a year because of band activities which kept him in the east, will be among the members of the Crosby family who will attend the gala premiere of Bob's Dixieland Band at the Avalon Casino on Catalina Island Sunday. Others include his famed brother Bing Crosby and the other brother, besides movie and radio stars like Kay Kyser, Victor Young, Don Ameche and Meredith Willson. The broadcasts of the Dixieland Music Shop will be heard from there every Thursday night over NBC.

RADIO BRIEFS
New trumpeter in Frankie Masters' orchestra is Walter Smith, formerly of Larry Clinton's band. When Charlie McCarthy returns in September, his voice, Edgar Bergen, will make the dummy's adventures a semi-serial story and instead of having each program complete in itself, dialers will have to tune in from week to week to find out what it's all about. Bergen expects to add several new characters including girl friends for Charlie.

For the first time in his career, Don Ameche, known to screen and radio fans as the romantic hero type, turns bad man in his next picture, "Western Union."

Linda Carlson, who plays the mother in "The Parker Family," is spending her time between broadcasts working on a series of short stories.

Gwen Williams will be Frankie Masters' guest at the luncheon session at the Taft Hotel Monday afternoon so that camera enthusiasts can take pictures. In the evening the bandleader plays host to Yvette, new song star.

Although he uses a 21-piece orchestra on the Tuesday night "Johnny Presents" programs, Ray Block has cut down the size of his "Crime Doctor" crew to 12 inasmuch as all that's required on the latter show is cue music and background passages.

Abbott and Costello will remain in Hollywood for five or six weeks while making their first starring picture for Universal.

Alec Templeton breaks up his radio vacation to guest on the "Basin Street" program over NBC Sunday.

STARS SAY—
For Friday, August 9
According to the lunar transits, social, domestic or affectional matters will engage paramount attention. Other affairs are adversely aspected. There is menace of fraud, duplicity as well as loss through careless signatures. Heckless or drastic action may bring considerable penalty. In difficulties or tight financial crises it is probably that feminine generosity will come to the fore. But parties, festivities and sentimental values are uppermost.

Those whose birthday it is may have a more pleasant than prosperous year. The attention may be devoted to celebrations, sentimental attachments or good times generally. Business is jeopardized by fraud, treachery, careless signatures and documents, and also by rash and impractical moves. Study correspondence lest there be misconstruction and trouble. Be discreet in group action.

A child born on this day may be disposed to stretch the truth or exhibit other forms of duplicity or "shrewdness," to its detriment. But it will be socially gracious, refined, and lovable.

SARKKINEN TO MARRY

PORTSMOUTH, August 9 — Ohio State University's star football player of last year, Esko Sarkkinen, will soon be married, it was revealed today. A license was issued to Sarkkinen, a native of Fairport Harbor and an All-American end, and Jane Burkhardt, of Portsmouth. Sarkkinen is 22 years old and will become athletic director of Lancaster High School this fall. Miss Burkhardt also is an Ohio State graduate.

BRYANT CLAIMS ARM IS BETTER; HE'LL JOIN CUBS

CHICAGO, August 9—Clay Bryant, Chicago Cubs pitcher who has been in Los Angeles undergoing treatment for a sore arm, held hopes today that he soon will be back in a Major League uniform, ready for duty.

The young righthander, who stopped off in Chicago enroute to his home in Zanesville, O., for a few days of rest, said his arm felt as good as ever, and that he will rejoin the Cubs when they return to Chicago next Monday.

FIVE OF FINEST HORSES TO RUN FOR DERBY CASH

By Harry C. Warren
CHICAGO August 9 — Despite the bumper crop of three-year-olds this season only five will face the barrier tomorrow in the $62,000 American Derby at Washington Park.

What the field lacks in quantity will be balanced in quality, however, with such headliners as Bimelech, Gallahadon, Sirocco, Midland and Weigh Anchor scheduled to start.

In the event these five go to the post the race will gross $62,150, with $45,000 going to the winner. To the second horse goes $7,500, with $5,000 for third and $2,500 for fourth leaving the fifth entry with nothing more than a mile and a quarter of strenuous exercise as a reward.

Three of the entries—Bimelech, Gallahadon and Sirocco—have accounted for America's four best races for three-year-olds this season; the Kentucky Derby, the Preakness, the Belmont Stakes and the Arlington Classic Stakes.

Mrs. Ethel V. Mars' Milky Way farm entry, Gallahadon, took the derby honors; Bimelech, Col. E. R. Bradley's entry won the Preakness and Belmont, while Charles T. Fisher's Sirocco beat both Gallahadon and "Big Ben" in the Arlington classic. Speaking of victories — each of the big three — Bimelech, Sirocco and Gallahadon — boasts two victories over the other two.

GOATS—Larry French, Cubs, whose wildness on the mound helped the Reds to beat Chicago; Glen Stewart, Giants, whose two-base wild heave paved the way for his team's downfall.

RUNS BATTED IN

A Horse Laugh, To Be Sure

HERE'S a big horse laugh for Kayak II and all the other horses in that recent Hollywood Gold Cup race at Inglewood, Cal. The laugh is being enjoyed by Chalcedon, the Maryland horse which copied the event. Chalcedon now ranks eighth among all-time money winning horses. The big bay horse, owned by W. L. Brann, took down $36,290 in the Inglewood race.

'Not Welcome' Sign Put Out for Jacobs to See

By Lawton Carver

NEW YORK, Aug. 9—Major League baseball representing interests aggregating upwards of $30,000,000 will not tolerate an interloper such as Mike Jacobs, who plans to buy the Brooklyn Dodgers. It is a 10 to 1 bet that this deal never will go through. Baseball doesn't want to get mixed up with boxing.

Assuming that everything else can be straightened out to the point where the Dodgers will be placed on the market, it is extremely unlikely that Jacobs would be accepted by the other club owners. And, of course, always in the background is Baseball Commissioner Kenesaw Mountain Landis.

Thus today we wish to suggest that Uncle Mike will not buy the Brooklyn Dodgers, despite his designs in that direction. Some of the minority stockholders already are hollering against him as new head of the Dodgers, but even if this can be straightened out and the other National League club-owners are satisfied, Judge Landis may, and probably will, step in to prevent any such transfer of baseball interests.

It just so happens that the Dodgers are doing all right now. A few years ago, before the Larry MacPhail regime, a Mike Jacobs might have been welcomed. But not now. The Dodgers don't need any help now, and that is the attitude of the minority stockholders regardless of what the Brooklyn Trust Company may think.

RED BIRDS CUTTING IN MARGIN OF MINNEAPOLIS

COLUMBUS, August 9 — Only two and one-half games out of second place, the Columbus Red Birds hoped for a victory tonight over Louisville and a Kansas City win over second-place Minneapolis. The Red Birds came from behind to edge out the Colonels, 5 to 4, last night. Going into the last of the eighth, the Birds were behind 4 to 3, but a Louisville error and three singles scored two runs and gave Columbus victory.

Minneapolis and Kansas City, currently in first place in the American Association by 12 games, were rained out at Kansas City.

In other games yesterday and last night, Indianapolis swamped Toledo, 7 to 4, and St. Paul beat Milwaukee, 5 to 2.

Bucky Walters Turns In Brilliant 3-1 Margin Over Chicago

CINCINNATI, August 9—Junior Thompson, youthful Cincinnati Redleg hurler, was to take up tonight where Bucky Walters left off yesterday, Rhineland fans hoped.

Walters scattered nine Chicago Cub hits as the Reds eked out a 3 to 1 victory, only their third victory in the last nine games. Larry French allowed the Redlegs even fewer hits, six in all, but two came in each of the first, fifth and eighth innings. Cincinnati made only their hits count, scoring a single counter in each of these frames.

Werber led at the plate for the Reds, getting two singles. Dalesandro got three safeties for the Cubs.

Yesterday's game was started at 2 p. m., an hour earlier than usual, so that the game might be over by the time funeral services were conducted in Visalia, Calif., for Willard Herschberger, the Reds' second-string catcher who killed himself in Boston last Saturday.

The St. Louis Cardinals moved into town today for a night game with the Reds. Bill McGee was expected to oppose Thompson on the mound for the Cards.

Dolph Camilli's twelfth homer of the season with two men on base gave the Brooklyn Dodgers a 6 to 3 twelfth inning verdict over the New York Giants. Manager Lee Durocher sent Wesley Flowers, a rookie southpaw recently recruited from Louisville, to the hill in the eighth and Wesley blanked the Giants the rest of the way to give Dodgers their seventh consecutive win at the Polo Grounds.

Cleveland muffed a chance to steal the American League lead away from the idle Detroit Tigers by having a doubleheader with the St. Louis Browns. The Indians, with Bob Feller winning his 19th decision, took the opener, 7 to 4 and dropped the nightcap, 2 to 1.

The New York Yankees relief pitching proved inadequate again yesterday and the Boston Red Sox staged a two-run inning rally capture a 6 to 5 contest. Jimmy Foxx hit his 26th homer of the current campaign for the Sox.

A rousing rally in the tenth inning enabled the Philadelphia Athletics to defeat the Washington Senators, 6 to 4. In the ninth the A's tied the contest when Pinch Hitter Frank Hayes doubled Ben ny McCoy home.

Pittsburgh and St. Louis and Detroit and Chicago were not scheduled.

REDS TO PITCH THOMPSON; BILL M'GEE HIS FOE

Bucky Walters Turns In Brilliant 3-1 Margin Over Chicago

CINCINNATI, August 9—Junior Thompson, youthful Cincinnati Redleg hurler, was to take up tonight where Bucky Walters left off yesterday, Rhineland fans hoped.

Walters scattered nine Chicago Cub hits as the Reds eked out a 3 to 1 victory, only their third victory in the last nine games. Larry French allowed the Redlegs even fewer hits, six in all, but two came in each of the first, fifth and eighth innings. Cincinnati made all their hits count, scoring a single counter in each of these frames.

Werber led at the plate for the Reds, getting two singles. Dallascandro got three safeties for the Cubs.

Yesterday's game was started at 2 p. m., an hour earlier than usual, so that the game might be over by the time funeral services were conducted in Visalia, Calif., for Willard Hershberger, the Reds' second-string catcher who killed himself in Boston last Saturday.

The St. Louis Cardinals moved into town today for a night game with the Reds. Bill McGee was expected to oppose Thompson on the mound for the Cards.

Dolph Camilli's twelfth homer of the season with two men on base gave the Brooklyn Dodgers a 6 to 3 twelfth inning verdict over the New York Giants. Manager Lee Durocher sent Wesley Flowers, a rookie southpaw recently recruited from Louisville, to the hill in the eighth and Wesley blanked the Giants the rest of the way to give Dodgers their seventh consecutive win at the Polo Grounds.

Cleveland muffed a chance to steal the American League lead away from the idle Detroit Tigers by having a doubleheader with the St. Louis Browns. The Indians, with Bob Feller winning his 19th decision, took the opener, 7 to 4 and dropped the nightcap, 2 to 1.

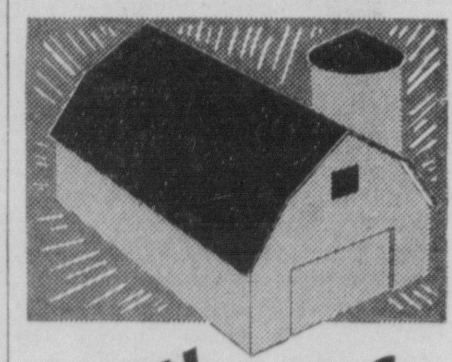

The New York Yankees relief pitching proved inadequate again yesterday and the Boston Red Sox staged a two-run inning rally capture a 6 to 5 contest. Jimmy Foy hit his 26th homer of the current campaign for the Sox.

A rousing rally in the tenth inning enabled the Philadelphia Athletics to defeat the Washington Senators, 6 to 4. In the ninth the A's tied the contest when Pinch-Hitter Frank Hayes doubled Ben McCoy home.

Pittsburgh and St. Louis and Detroit and Chicago were not scheduled.

Fire Sweeps Speakman's Business In Lancaster

Flames Are Discovered In Office Of Implement Establishment

Dewey Speakman, 360 East Mound Street, declared Friday that his loss in a fire at Lancaster, Thursday, had been estimated at between $15,000 and $20,000. Speakman's business establishment, the Lancaster Implement Co., 502 Lincoln Avenue, was destroyed by flames that broke out in the office of the building.

Three regular firemen and three volunteers were burned on the face, arms and shoulders when fighting the flames which enveloped the building within a few minutes after the fire was discovered.

George Speakman, son of the proprietor, was waiting on a customer at noon Thursday when the flames broke out. He said that no one was in the office at the time, that his father and a salesman had gone to lunch. Firemen discounted the possibility of an explosion although passersby said they saw a bright flash and a mass of flames in the office.

Heat Intense

The heat was so intense by the time the younger Speakman reached the office that it was impossible to save any of the office equipment.

Others in the building besides the customer and young Speakman were Paul List, mechanic and Bill Nelson, welder. All four ran from the building at first because of the flames, then returned and wheeled out two new tractors.

The elder Speakman said six other smaller tractors, two trucks and another piece of farm machinery were in the building and were damaged.

Residents across the street said flames spread rapidly through the building.

Bills of smoke, unfamiliar to local residents because there have been no major fires here in recent weeks, attracted thousands to the scene because it was during the late lunch hour when most people were either returning to work or were going home as stores close Thursday noons during August and July.

Firemen were credited with a good piece of work by observers. They laid three main hose lines from hydrants nearby and had the fire under control 15 minutes after they arrived. The fire was completely out at 1:15 p. m.

The first alarm went in at 12:42 p. m., and one of the pumps responded with five men and the second alarm was turned in about five minutes later, bringing the ladder truck.

Traffic Jammed

Police and sheriff's deputies sped to the scene to break up a traffic jam near the fire as Lincoln Avenue is a narrow street. Autos were directed around the fire area.

The building's big front display windows were broken out and the interior a charred structure, particularly under the roof.

The Speakmans were able to salvage records from the partitioned office and the elder Speakman said a majority of the contents lost would probably be in the machinery repair parts department, but he could not definitely estimate the extent.

Firemen burned were Frank Schultz, Howard Hooker, and Russ Haines. Deputy State Fire Marshal W. D. Himes was also burned slightly as were two volunteers, Stacy and Clyde Beougher. Stacy Beougher is from Rockbridge and Clyde is from Enterprize.

Thursday's blaze was the most disastrous since a fire destroyed the frame building housing Kelly R. Hannan's garage in October, 1937.

ain since the opening of large-scale air attacks on June 18 are now said to be within a few machines of the 400 mark.

British authorities believe that if the German losses are maintained at this rate, the Germans will find it too costly, particularly in the lives of their pilots, to maintain the "blitzkrieg" indefinitely.

The performance of British airmen yesterday against new types of German planes was praised highly by jubilant London newspapers.

That both sides still have a few tricks up their sleeves was seen in yesterday's engagement, in which the British introduced barrage balloons over shipping convoys for the first time in the war.

The Germans, for their part, used a new type of "booby trap," flinging out bundles of trailing wires from their planes in an effort to foul the propellers of the British machines.

tration bill without fear of attack from Republican opponents in the November election. The Democrats are also confident that conscription has widespread public support. They point to polls showing this.

The most curious thing about Willkie's attitude toward conscription is that nobody on Capitol Hill even professes to know what it is. This leaves his running-mate, Senator Charles McNary, of Oregon, on a peculiar "spot." McNary may have to vote on the issue in the senate before Willkie makes his acceptance speech and there is the possibility that the GOP ticket may be split on it.

GERMAN PLANES CONTINUE RAIDS

steady action for the British defense forces in the wake of yesterday's engagement, which ranged for 14 hours.

Big Convoy Attacked

Late this morning Nazi raiders were reported over southeastern England, possibly heralding another day of devastating air combat like yesterday's engagement, which started when some 350 German bombers and fighters suddenly hurled 2,000 bombs at a large British ship convoy in the English Channel.

This morning the London Daily Express estimated that no less than 800 German planes—300 dive-bombers and 500 fighters—participated in the attacks on convoyed ships and ensuing sky duels.

Describing the latest aerial developments in Germany's "blitzkrieg preview," an official British announcement said:

"Enemy aircraft last night dropped isolated bombs near the Straits of Dover, the Bristol Channel and on northwest England. Several houses were damaged.

"Five bombs were reported dropped on the residential quarter of a midland town. One house was demolished completely and others were severely damaged.

"Reports from all areas indicate the number of casualties was few, including several serious injuries, some of which were fatal."

British bombers retaliated quickly against the German assaults, and there were indications that swarms of British raiders soared over Germany during the night.

Indicating that the British planes were over numerous German or Nazi-held cities, nine German radio stations—at Stuttgart, Brussels, Cologne, Hilversum, Leipzig, Berlin, Strasbourg, Frankfurt and Saarbrücken—abruptly cut off their programs.

Yesterday the massed triple German air attack, preceded by a Nazi torpedo boat assault that sank three ships in the British convoy, met fierce resistance from an estimated 100 British Spitfire and Hurricane fighter planes.

BERLIN, August 9—German bombing raids on Liverpool, Bristol and many ports and air bases along the south coast of England were announced by the Nazi high command today.

A check-up shows, the high command declared, that 49 British planes were shot down in the gigantic battle over the English channel yesterday. German military authorities denied Britain's claim that 53 Nazi craft were lost in the combat. The German losses were placed at 10.

(Editor's Note: Today's German communiqué embraced the first news of an air attack on Liverpool, heart of England's industrial area.)

The communiqué said: "As already announced, German mosquito boats on the night of August 7 attacked a strongly protected convoy. Despite fierce resistance by the destroyers, patrol boats and armed ships concerned, our boats succeeded in sinking an 8,000 ton tanker and two merchant ships of 5,000 tons each, while a smaller tanker was set afire.

"Our mosquito boats returned safely.

"On August 8, Stuka squadrons protected by fighter and naval units, bombed a strongly protected convoy south of the Isle of Wight banks. As already announced, 12 merchantmen totalling 55,000 tons were sunk and seven severely damaged.

"The total number of ships sunk or damaged by our air force yesterday was 28.

"Our Messerschmitts destroyed 12 barrage balloons near Dover.

"During air battles resulting from the convoy attacks, a total of 49 enemy planes was shot down off the Isle of Wight and Dover, including 33 Spitfires. Ten German planes were lost while two made emergency landings.

"During the night, our bombers attacked British aircraft plants at Liverpool and Bristol, as well as ports, air bases and anti-aircraft positions in South England.

"Mine-laying by our airplanes continued on schedule.

"Enemy planes flying in various parts of Western Germany were forced by anti-aircraft fire to turn away or were prevented from releasing their bombs. Some individual bombs caused insignificant damage to buildings and fields. A few persons were wounded in a small hamlet in border territory.

Two R. A. F. planes were brought down by anti-aircraft fire."

With regard to British claims of 53 Nazi losses in yesterday's air battle, a spokesman said:

"The R. A. F. has always attempted to smoke screen hard blows dealt to it by claiming big air victories. Anyone checking the record in Norway, Belgium and France since the war began knows whose claims are most reliable."

ROME, Aug. 9—Destruction of five British and two Italian planes in a massed air battle over the Cyrenaican Frontier was announced by the Italian military bulletin today.

The communiqué also told of Italian occupation of Hargeisa in British Somaliland.

(Editor's note: A British communiqué from Cairo admitted Italian occupation of Hargeisa in Wednesday.

"Over the Cyrenaican Frontier," the Italian communiqué said, "five enemy planes were brought down in a furious combat between 16 Italian and 27 enemy chasers. Two Italian planes did not return.

"Italian troops advancing in British Somaliland occupied Hargeisa."

CAIRO, Aug. 9—Fifteen Italian fighting planes were destroyed in a major aerial battle over Libya, a British Royal Air Force communiqué said today.

The announcement said the British planes in the battle were "outnumbered two to one," and that two Royal Air Force fighting planes are missing.

(Editor's note: The Italian version of the battle claimed five British and two Italian planes were lost. It said 16 Italian and 27 British planes participated in the "furious combat.")

According to the British communiqué, the engagement occurred yesterday over Sidomar.

ROBERT ROONEY TO HAVE 'QUALITY STREET' ROLE

J. Robert Rooney, son of Dr. and Mrs. J. J. Rooney of Circleville, has been chosen to play a part in the forthcoming production of "Quality Street," by Sir James Barrie to be presented by the School of Drama at the University of Vermont Summer Session August 12 and 13 in Burlington, Vt. This is Mr. Rooney's third season with the School of Drama.

Miss Marion Rooney, Broadway star of "Abe Lincoln in Illinois," will play the lead in this production of Barrie's famous play.

Fear That Uncle Sam Will Quit Neutrality Disclosed By Germans

By Drew Pearson and Robert S. Allen

WASHINGTON, August 9—How much American isolation means to Hitler and how worried he is over the drift toward selling U. S. destroyers to Great Britain has been illustrated by several factors recently.

One is the steady stream of statements and press interviews by Nazi leaders reminding the United States that she has no quarrel with Europe, and that Hitler has no intention of coming to the Western Hemisphere.

Positive proof that these are intended entirely for American consumption came the other day when Adolf Hitler sent for Hearst newsman, veteran Karl von Weigand, and gave him an exclusive interview, saying that he had no intention of going to South America.

King Features, which distributes von Weigand's writings, immediately telegraphed to the leading papers of Latin America, offering to sell them the interview. A large number of the editors ordered it—when suddenly King Features discovered that Hitler had been there ahead of them.

The German consuls and embassies in Latin America had distributed the speech free of charge and cable tolls paid to all newspapers. Congressmen do not have much better luck.

Note—Mrs. Holmead's father gets a salary of $10,000 at the White House. However, Mrs. Holmead's salary remains a dark secret. All government salaries are required to be a matter of public record, but Robert Horton, press relations officer of the Council, refused to divulge her stipend, referring inquiry to the Assistant Secretary of the Council, Sidney Sherwood. Mr. Sherwood works for Mr. McReynolds. He stated, "No public good can come from disclosing Mrs. Holmead's salary."

MISSING FARM LEADER

One of the chief subjects discussed at the G.O.P. farm pow-wow in Des Moines was the McNary-Hagen bill, twice passed by Congress and vetoed by Coolidge and Hoover.

But the news dispatches reporting this fact contained no mention of Senator Charles McNary, chief author of the famous measure and the running mate selected by Wendell Willkie for the specific purpose of wooing agricultural votes. Reason nothing was said about McNary at the conference was because he wasn't there.

Behind this is an interesting story. The prime movers of the meeting, among them Iowa's Governor George Wilson, either forgot or purposely did not invite McNary. At any rate he was not asked to come—until Willkie personally telephoned McNary two days before the conference.

His last-minute thought was inspired by Representative Frank Horton of Wyo., Willkie's personal friend. Horton discovered that no invitation had been extended to McNary by the Wilson group and hastily telephoned the presidential candidate at Colorado Springs. Willkie, in turn, immediately telephoned McNary and asked him to come.

However, the Senate G.O.P. floor leader declined because of the pressure of legislative duties. He explained that the bill calling the National Guard into active service was coming up Monday and he could not leave Washington.

Note — McNary's acceptance speech, like Willkie's, will not be more than one half hour's duration. One of the chief subjects of the address will be the water power issue, on which McNary has a strong public ownership record.

WHITE HOUSE NEPOTISM
Speaking of nepotism, it is interesting to note that on occasion, the White House secretariat is not above the oldest of political practices—squeezing patronage for members of the family.

Nepotist No. 1 is William H. McReynolds, one of the gentlemen who was promoted through civil service to hold one of the most coveted jobs in Washington, secretary to the President. He is also secretary of the new National Defense Council.

Mr. McReynolds is supposed to handle personnel matters, that is to place the best people in the right jobs. However, he is not averse to placing members of his own family, and his own daughter has just been placed in an excellent personnel job in the National Defense Council. She is Mrs. Margaret Holmead, and she is supposed to handle job applications to the Council.

Applicants complain that they can get no report on what happens to their applications. In fact

NATIONAL GUARD CALL OKEHED BY VOTE IN SENATE

ments fail to provide the army with sufficient men. Wheeler called this an attempt to postpone a vote on the conscription issue until after the November elections.

Other attempts will be made to limit the total registration of men between 21 and 31 to 1,000,000, and require the President to obtain specific authorization from Congress for each additional call. Two attempts by Sen. Lee (D) Okla., to place these restrictions on the President were turned down by the committee.

Blitzkrieg Awaited
Administration leaders believed the outcome of Hitler's drive against England will influence many senators who are believed "on the fence." Should the long-threatened blitzkrieg against England appear to be successful they believe it will mean more and immediate support for conscription. On the other hand, should the struggle between Germany and England develop into a long-time affair, they fear the cause of conscription will be awakened.

The opposition welcomed the return to the senate of Sen. Clark (D) Mo., a leading isolationist. As yet there is no justification for peacetime conscription, Clark said the bill embodies "a scheme the army has had since the last war," a copy of which he saw while a member of the general staff during the World War.

He will support proposed reduction of the army's enlistment period and raise of enlistment pay, proposed by former Secretary of War Woodring after he was virtually asked to resign by President Roosevelt.

The house, meanwhile, planned to give prompt consideration to the bill to mobilize the National Guard. It was apparent, however, that the house will engage in a spectacular battle, similar to that of the senate, over a defeated amendment which would prevent use of the guard anywhere in the Western Hemisphere, and restrict it to the United States and its territorial possessions. The amendment, sponsored by Sen. Adams (D) Colo., lost in the senate by a single vote.

Administration leaders argued it would seriously handicap cooperation in Western Hemisphere defense agreements made at the recent Havana conference. Opponents said such power to the President might involve this nation in a foreign war.

Rep. May (D) Ky., chairman of the house military affairs committee, promised to expedite committee consideration of the mobilization bill.

Fire Sweeps Speakman's Business In Lancaster

Flames Are Discovered In Office Of Implement Establishment

Dewey Speakman, 360 East Mound Street, declared Friday that his loss in a fire at Lancaster, Thursday, had been estimated at between $15,000 and $20,000. Speakman's business establishment, the Lancaster Implement Co., 502 Lincoln Avenue, was destroyed by flames that broke out in the office of the building.

Three regular firemen and three volunteers were burned on the face, arms and shoulders when fighting the flames which enveloped the building within a few minutes after the fire was discovered.

George Speakman, son of the proprietor, was waiting on a customer at noon Thursday when the flames broke out. He said that no one was in the office at the time, that his father and a salesman had gone to lunch. Firemen discounted the possibility of an explosion although passersby said they saw a bright flash and a mass of flames in the office.

Heat Intense
The heat was so intense by the time the younger Speakman reached the office that it was impossible to save any of the office equipment.

Others in the building besides the customer and young Speakman were Paul List, mechanic and Bill Nelson, welder. All four ran from the building at first because of the flames, then returned and wheeled out two new tractors.

The elder Speakman said six other smaller tractors, two trucks and another piece of farm machinery were in the building and were damaged.

Residents across the street said flames spread rapidly through the building.

Billows of smoke, unfamiliar to local residents because there have been no major fires here in recent weeks, attracted thousands to the scene because it was during the late lunch hour when most people were either returning to work or were going home as stores close Thursday noons during August and July.

Firemen were credited with a good piece of work by observers. They laid three main hose lines from hydrants nearby and had the fire under control 15 minutes after they arrived. The fire was completely out at 1:15 p. m.

The first alarm went in at 12:42 p. m., and one of the pumps responded with five men and the second alarm was turned in about five minutes later, bringing the ladder truck.

Traffic Jammed

Police and sheriff's deputies sped to the scene to break up a traffic jam near the fire at Lincoln Avenue is a narrow street. Autos were directed around the fire area.

The building's big front display windows were broken out and the interior a charred structure, particularly under the roof.

The Speakmans were able to salvage records from the partitioned office and the elder Speakman said a majority of the contents would probably be in the machinery repair parts department, but he could not definitely estimate the extent.

Firemen burned were Frank Schultz, Howard Hooker, and Russ Haines. Deputy State Fire Marshal W. D. Himes was also burned slightly as were two volunteers, Stacy and Clyde Boughner. Stacy Boughner is from Rockbridge and Clyde is from Enterprise.

Thursday's blaze was the most disastrous blaze since a fire destroyed the frame building housing Kelly R. Hannan's garage in October, 1937.

ain since the opening of large-scale air attacks on June 18 are now said to be within a few machines of the 400 mark.

British authorities believe that if the German losses are maintained at this rate, the Germans will find it too costly, particularly in the lives of their pilots, to maintain the "blitzkrieg" indefinitely.

The performance of British airmen yesterday against new types of German planes was praised highly by jubilant London newspapers.

That both sides still have a few tricks up their sleeves was seen in yesterday's engagement, in which the British introduced barrage balloons over shipping convoys for the first time in the war.

The Germans, for their part, used a new type of "booby trap," flinging out bundles of trailing wires from their planes in an effort to foul the propellers of the British machines.

tration bill without fear of attack from Republican opponents in the November election. The Democrats are also confident that conscription has widespread public support. They point to polls showing this.

The most curious thing about Willkie's attitude toward conscription is that nobody on capitol hill even professes to know what it is. This leaves his running-mate, Senator Charles L. McNary, of Oregon, on a peculiar "spot." McNary may have to vote on the issue in the senate before Willkie makes his acceptance speech and there is the possibility that the GOP ticket may be split on it.

including 33 Spitfires. Ten German planes were lost while two made emergency landings.

"During the night, our bombers attacked British aircraft plants at Liverpool and Bristol, as well as ports, air bases and anti-aircraft positions in South England.

"Mine-laying by our airplanes continued on schedule.

"Enemy planes flying in various parts of Western Germany were forced by anti-aircraft fire to turn away or were prevented from releasing their bombs. Some individual bombs caused insignificant damage to buildings and fields. A few persons were wounded in a small hamlet in border territory.

Two R. A. F. planes were brought down by anti-aircraft fire.

With regard to British claims of 53 Nazi losses in yesterday's air battle, a spokesman said:

"The R. A. F. has always attempted to smoke screen hard blows dealt to it by claiming big air victories. Anyone checking the record in Norway, Belgium and France since the war began knows whose claims are most reliable."

ROME, Aug. 9.—Destruction of five British and two Italian planes in a massed air battle over the Cyrenaican Frontier was announced by the Italian military bulletin today.

The communique also told of Italian occupation of Hargeisa in British Somaliland.

(Editor's note: A British communique from Cairo admitted Italian occupation of Hargeisa in Wednesday.

"Over the Cyrenaican Frontier," the Italian communique said, "five enemy planes were brought down in a furious combat between 16 Italian and 27 enemy fighters. Two Italian planes did not return.

"Italian troops advancing in British Somaliland occupied Hargeisa."

CAIRO, Aug. 9.—Fifteen Italian fighting planes were destroyed in a major aerial battle over Libya, a British Royal Air Force communique said today.

The announcement said the British planes in the battle were "outnumbered two to one," and that two Royal Air Force fighting planes are missing.

(Editor's note: The Italian version of the battle claimed five British and two Italian planes were lost. It said 16 Italian and 27 British planes participated in the "furious combat.")

According to the British communique, the engagement occurred yesterday over Sidiomar.

Fear That Uncle Sam Will Quit Neutrality Disclosed By Germans

By Drew Pearson and Robert S. Allen

WASHINGTON, August 9.—How much American isolation means to Hitler and how worried he is over the drift toward selling U. S. destroyers to Great Britain has been illustrated by several factors recently.

One is the steady stream of statements and press interviews by Nazi leaders reminding the United States that she has no quarrel with Europe, and that Hitler has no intention of coming to the Western Hemisphere.

Positive proof that these are intended entirely for American consumption came the other day when Adolf Hitler sent for Hearst newsman, veteran Karl von Weigand, and gave him an exclusive interview, saying that he had no intention of going to South America.

King Features, which distributes von Weigand's writings, immediately telegraphed to the leading papers of Latin America, offering to sell them the interview. A large number of the editors ordered it—when suddenly King Features discovered that Hitler had been there ahead of them. The German consuls and embassies in Latin America had distributed the speech free of charge and cable tolls paid to all newspapers.

MISSING FARM LEADER

One of the chief subjects discussed at the G.O.P. farm powwow in Des Moines was the McNary-Hagen bill, twice passed by Congress and vetoed by Coolidge and Hoover.

But the news dispatches reporting this fact contained no mention of Senator Charles McNary, chief author of the famous measure and the running mate selected by Wendell Willkie for the specific purpose of wooing agricultural votes. Reason nothing was said about McNary at the conference was because he wasn't there.

Behind this is an interesting story. The prime movers of the meeting, among them Iowa's Governor George Wilson, either forgot or purposely did not invite McNary. At any rate he was not asked to come—until Willkie personally telephoned McNary two days before the conference.

The last-minute thought was inspired by Representative Frank Horton of Wyo., Willkie's personal friend. Horton discovered that no invitation had been extended to McNary by the Wilson group and hastily telephoned the presidential candidate at Colorado Springs. Willkie, in turn, immediately telephoned McNary and asked him to come.

However, the Senate G.O.P. floor leader declined because of the pressure of legislative duties. He explained that the bill calling the National Guard into active service was coming up Monday and he could not leave Washington.

Note — McNary's acceptance speech, like Willkie's, will not be more than one half hour's duration. One of the chief subjects of the address will be the water power issue, on which McNary has a strong public ownership record.

WHITE HOUSE NEPOTISM

Speaking of nepotism, it is interesting to note that on occasion, the White House secretariat is not above the oldest of political practices — squeezing patronage for members of the family.

Nepotist No. 1 is William H. McReynolds, one of the gentlemen with a "passion for anonymity," who was promoted through civil service to hold one of the most coveted jobs in Washington, secretary to the President. He is also secretary of the new National Defense Council.

Mr. McReynolds is supposed to handle personnel matters, that is to place the best people in the right jobs. However, he is not averse to placing members of his own family, and his own daughter has just been placed in an excellent personnel job in the National Defense Council. She is Mrs. Margaret Holmead, and she is supposed to handle job applications to the Council.

Applicants complain that they can get no report on what happens to their applications. In fact

Congressmen do not have much better luck.

Note—Mrs. Holmead's father gets a salary of $10,000 at the White House. However, Mrs. Holmead's salary remains a dark secret. All government salaries are required to be a matter of public record, but Robert Horton, press relations officer of the Council, refused to divulge her stipend, referring inquiry to the Assistant Secretary of the Council, Sidney Sherwood. Mr. Sherwood works for Mr. McReynolds. He stated, "No public good can come from disclosing Mrs. Holmead's salary."

another plane after all passengers had been questioned, said in Los Angeles:

"We found the stewardess in a little compartment where the women's coats are kept. She was unconscious and we carried her out."

Two radio entertainers who were aboard the plane also said the stewardess was not found in the ladies' lounge, as indicated by Stanley's statement. But they differed also with Miss Gahagan, insisting the girl was found in the baggage compartment. The two requested their names be withheld.

Lieut. John Oman, another passenger, also was quoted as saying Miss Griffith had been found in the baggage section.

One unidentified male passenger left the plane hurriedly at Nashville and was taken by taxi to a railroad station where he indicated he would board a train for Birmingham. The taxi driver told police the man appeared "highly nervous," but whether authorities were interested in locating the passenger was not divulged.

ments fail to provide the army with sufficient men. Wheeler called this an attempt to postpone a vote on the conscription issue until after the November elections.

Other attempts will be made to limit the total registration of men between 21 and 31 to 1,000,000, and require the President to obtain specific authorization from congress for each additional call. Two attempts by Sen. Lee (D) Okla., to place these restrictions on the President were turned down by the committee.

Blitzkrieg Awaited
Administration leaders believed the outcome of Hitler's drive against England will influence many senators who are believed "on the fence." Should the long-threatened blitzkrieg against England appear to be successful they believe it will mean more and immediate support for conscription. On the other hand, should the struggle between Germany and England develop into a long-time affair, they fear the cause of conscription will be awakened.

FUNDS FROM STATE NOT ENOUGH FOR RELIEF COST

Auditor Forrest Short announced Friday that although the county had received $1,287.01 from the excise tax on beer, malt and admissions Thursday to lighten its relief burden, the sum was not sufficient to pay all the present relief expenses.

The county is still to receive an appropriation of approximately $1,700 state matching money for July, but even with this amount the county will still be in the "red," the county auditor remarked.

County commissioners have on previous emergencies transferred appropriations from the general to the relief fund to relieve temporarily the situation, but Auditor Short stated he believed it would be unsafe to draw any more from the already depleted general fund.
